WASHINGTON, May O .- "We will not be able to talk about the Billion Dollar Congress on the stump this fail." remarked Representative Balley of Texas this afternoon just after the House, by a vote of 185 to 65, passed the enormously extravagant River and Harbor bill. The young member from the Lone Star State said to-day's proceedings in the House would surely be condemned by the seconomical people in both parties. He might have added that the proceedings combined "comedy and tragedy" of the most pronounced type. The tragedy was given in the opening half hour of the session. when Representative Rusk of Baltimore, from the Committee on Accounts, introduced a rese lution to pay the surviving relatives of an old man who has been employed to mix the paste in the folding room of the House of Repreentatives for the past twenty-five years six months' salary, or $350, and $200 for his funeral expenses. Representative Moses of Goorgia and several other Representatives vigorously attacked the proposition. The read the House a lecture on the subject of oconomy, and deprecated the extravagant exenditure of the public money. Tom Reed and his Republican associates prompted Tom Watson and the other Farmers' Alliance members who were leading the fight on the resolution. Of course it was defeated, and the Government saved $550. Then came the comedy. After a brief contest between the Committee on the District of Columbia and the River and Harbor Committee for the right of way, the River and Harmittee for the right of way, the fiver and flar-hor, tes completely drowned the friends of the District, and coasidoration of the "Pork" bill was resumed. An amendment was pending empowering the Secretary of War to reject un-satisfactory lidis, and for the Government to purchase materials and perform the work. This was withdrawn by Chairman Blanchard, who then domanded the previous question on the bill and amendments. Mr. Holman made an attempt to recommit the bill to the committee with instructions to

Mr. Holman made an attempt to recommit the bill to the committee with instructions to strike out the continuous contract provisions. Before that was voted upon Mr. Outhwaite of Ohio, another friend of ceonomy, moved an amendment to Mr. Holman's, providing that all of the new projects be striken from the bill. The roll call which followed showed that the Biver and Liarbor men were not to be frightened or stampeded by the appeals of the opposition, and they justified the prediction made by Mr. Blanchard before the House convened that the bill would pass by an overwhelming majority. Mr. Holman and his followers saw that it was uscless to prolong such an uneven fight, and demanded a yea and hay vote on the final passage of the Lill. The vote resulted as follows: AFFIRMATIVE VOTE.

Some of the Southern men who voted for the bill, when interviewed on the subject and reminded that their action might hurt the party in the coming election, sale very frankly that they were justified in voting appropriations for the imprevement of the water ways is their states in return for the money drawn from them to help pay the pensions. The Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. Haiman, is very much discouraged at the record made by his party in the House. He said:

"An increase in the revenues is inevitable if the expenditures are to continue on the basis of the present seasion. It is now apparent that a heavy deficit is bound to occur for the current year, and instead of trying to reduce the revenues at the next session, some method rent yoar, and instead of trying to reduce the revenues at the next session, some method will have to be introduced to raise taxation. During the past week various propositions or suggestions have been considered informally, and the income tax, or an increase in the tax on whiskey and tobacco, seems to be the most popular. The closest figuring shows that the expenditures for the next fiscal year will exceed $470,000,000, and perhaps reach $600,000,000. The receipts from all acutices are not apt to go beyond $470,000,000, and a heavy deficit is unsvoidable. There is some hope that the Senate may come to the rescue and reduce the River ble. There is some hope that the Senate ma come to the rescue and reduce the Rive and Eartor bill twenty-five per cent in order to save the record of the present Administration. The House cannot take sli the blame for the passage of such an enormous bill, nor can the President first to sign it and go before the country will a function sign it and go before the country will a function that the expeditures of his administration have been greater than the receipts." greater than the receipts."

Judge Redman is hopeful however that the Demogracia will do better, now that the Portk" fell is out of the way. "We expect," he says, "to reduce the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill several millions of dollars."

It is to the effect that Mr. Hatt authorized or requested Mr. Moorehead of the Cincinnati Commercial Garte to say to Gov. Foraker of Ohio that, if he (Foraker) would present the name of Senator Sherman to the Minneapolis Convention as a cancidate for the Presidency, the State of New York would cast its vote for him. Gov. Foraker's support for this scheme was sought upon the idea that, if nominated, Senator Sherman would resign and Foraker be sent to the Senator in his place. The story continues that Kckinley was approached upon the subject, but declined to aid the scheme.

Mr. Cockrell of Missouri introduced in th Senate to-day, by request of a former citizen of Missouri, now a resident of Washington, bill "For the Free and Unlimited Coinage of a bill" For the Free and Unlimited Coinage of a Temporarily Correct Silver Dollar." and it was referred to the Finance Committee. The pur-port of the bill is to have the President desig-hate every year the amount of silver equiva-lent in market value to the gold dollar, and to have silver dollars minted at that rate.

Representative White of Iowa introduced in the House to-day (by request) a bill similar to the one introduced in the Senate. It prothe one introduced in the Senate. It provides that only silver the product of mines of the United states is to be colned. It also provides that when, by the temporary decrease of the production of silver in this country resulting from this act, the price of silver shall have sufficiently increased, the President, with the consent of congress, shall cause an international conference to be held in Washington for the final settlement of the silver coinage question by an international agreement, to which conference all independent Governments of Europe and America, favorable to such agreement, shall be invited.

Attorney-General Miller was before the House Committee on the Reform in the Civil Service. Chairman Andrew asked him concerning Biddieman and William H. H. Sutzler of the United States Marshal's Office in Baltimore, whose removal had been recommended by the Civil Service Commission for soliciting contributions for political purposes. The Attorney General said he had no knowledge that the removal of these men had been requested, or that proceedings against them had been recommended. The only report of Commissioner Boosevelt received at his department was brought within the bast lew days, since his return from the South. The devartment, said the Attorney-General, kept no list of employees of Marshals offices. He had had no knowledge whatever that the men named had been indicted. No request had been made to him to look into the matter, but if there had been he would have investigated it, and, if he had found that the necused employees were guilty of direct violation of the Civil Service law, he would have proceeded against them. He thought the most direct way to get at the facts was to summen the United States Marshal at Baltimore. The men charged were appointed by the Marshal. The Marshal, said the Attorney-General, had told him nothing that would implicate any of his decuties. Service. Chairman Andrew asked him con implicate any of his deputies.

The special Pension Office Investigating Committee of the House resumed its sessions to-day. A. K. Raum. Jr. Haum. Jr.'s, reason for knowing his creditors was because complaint had been made against witness. After waiting for a while, the witness filed papers to Green B. Raum. Jr. for reinstatement, but the case was not attended to, and every time witness called on young Raum to see about his case in found him absent from the office. It was a well-known fact, the witness said, that young Raum haunted the pool rooms, and he visited them and saw young Raum there on five occasions during office hours. He was finally reinstated, after having seen Secretary Noble in company with Gen. Patterson of the Treasury Department. In antwer to Chairman Wheeler as to what other Pension Office employees he saw at the pool rooms, he said that he had seen Special Examiner Greenswall, a man named Shannon. Morris Ketcham, and Theodore Smith all there during office hours.

J. A. Race, a clerk in the Pension Bureau, testified that he had a conversation with Chief Clerk Webster of the Civil Service Commission about some one wanting pay for his Glace's) appointment to the Pension Bureau. In support of this he produced telegrams received by him at Ardmore, Indian Territory, from H. E. Cuney in Washington, in one of which Cuney said that he could get a place if him that he had been appointed to a place in the Pension Office. When winess arrived in Washington he was asked for money by Cuney, but refused to give him any. tal of Brazil, 2,000 miles across the country to the Bollyian border, to-day received advices from Rio to the effect that it is now almost positively decided that the President Gen. Florian Peixotto, and the entire military Government shall resign and a new election he held to choose a Government entirely from civil it e. This is to be done without a revolution or bloodshed of any kind; in fact it has been decided upon with the full consent and approval of President Peixotto.

"The military Government has utterly failed in Brazil," said Mr. Taves to-day, "To succeed, it should have been as absolute as that of Diaz in Mexico. Who will succeed to the Presidency cannot be guessed, but I most sincerely hope, as do all the better class in Brazil, that it will be one of those prominent in public life under the old Emperor. Should any of these be chosen there need be no fear that they will attempt to restore the empire. I know all of them personally, and know that they do not desire any such thing. WASHINGTON, May 9 .- If the overzealous adocates of Benjamin Harrison's renomination. who have been busy of late circulating malicious reports about the physical condition of James G. Bisine, could have seen that states-man this afternoon as he sat under the big tent at Barnum & Balley's circus, they would have trembled for their cause. For the past few weeks there has been a wave of Blaine enthuslasm rushing over the country, and no where has it reached such a great height as among the politicians in Washington. To counteract its effect the most outrageously incorrect stories have been set affont concerning the health of Mr. Blaine, and the authorship of some of the sensutional statements has been traced direct to that worthy son of his father.

Prince Russell Harrison, Mr. Diaine te-day, perhaps with malice aforethought, entered a denial in person to the re-ports that he is physically incapacitated for performing the duties of acr public office to which he might be called. He has not looked so well since his return from Europe, a few years ago, as he did this afternoon, when, attended by Mr. and Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Miss Hattie Blaine, and Mrs. Hitt, wife of Representative Hitt of Illinois, he visited the circus to renew his boyhood for a few hours, as he afterward expressed it. He enjoyed himself immensely from the moment he got sight of the highly colored object lessons in human anatomy on the canvas near the door of the side show until the last scene of the remarkable Columbus ex-could be heard all about under the lig tent, and so great was the interest caused by his presence that before the show was over the bareback riders and other wonderful men and women in the ring knew that Blaine of Mane was looking at them, and many gave a glance at him as they passed by. The crowd that sat near Mr. Blaine and his friends eyed the Sectors' intentix and all some the mans for the country intentix and all some the mans for the country intentix and all some the mans for the country with the utmost composure.

It is no exaggeration whatever to say that Mr. Blaine looked to-day like a well man. His usually pale face had a healthful glow and the famous "Blaine patlor" was absolutely lacking. It may lave been the heat of the afternoon or the excitoment of renewing the pleasures of beylood days, but, whatever the cause. Eighty Families Lose Their Homes.

St. Jons, N. B., May 9.-Fairville, a small rillage a mile from here, was the scene of a disastrous fire yesterday. The fire started in the schoolhouse, caused by a spark from a locomotive. A strong wind was blowing, and soon a dozen buildings were in flames. Water being scarce it was found necessary to tear down several buildings to prevent the further progress of the fire. About forty houses were consumed. The occupants were poor people, with little or no insurance. Eighty families are rendered homeless. The loss is about $0.000.

ANYTHING FOR A SENSATION. Mr. Drayton Did Not Meet His Wife at All at La Hourgogne's Wharf.

The World newspaper greeted Mrs. Astor and her daughter on Sunday, when they arrived on the steamship La Bourgogne, bringing home for burial the body of Mr. William Astor, with half a page of Police Gazette pictures and scandalous chronicles. It continued yesterday to treat a funeral as a chapter of candal. It published an entirely baseless statement, invented to that end, about the arrival of the two ladies and illustrated it with an entirely fictitious picture wherein the only approach to truth was that the two women were coarsely represented in heavy mourning for the husband of one and the father of the other. The published narrative pretended to describe in detail how Mr. J. Coleman Drayton went down to the wharf and met his wife in silence, and afterward accompanied her and her mother in the carriage to their house. The picture showed Mr. and Mrs. Drayton leaving the ship arm in arm. Of course no such scene occurred. Mr. J. Roosevel! Roosevelt, who met Mrs. Astor and Mrs. Drayton on their arrival, and, with Mr. John Jacob Astor and Mr. Benjamin Welles, accom-pauled them when they left, the ship and went o the carriages, said yesterday that Mr. Drayton was not at the wharf at all. Mr. Welles is

Mrs. Drayton's cousin an! it was he whose arm she took. The World article, apart from its attempt to drag in scandal, was a collection of blunders. Another picture represented "the casket in Another picture represented "the casket in the hold of La Bourgogne," whereas, according to Sexton Meuror, who removed the body, it was not in the hold of the vessel, but in a large stateroom on the subon deek. The World stated further that the body, after being taken to the mortuary of Trinity Chapel, was removed to Mrs. Astor's bosne, 350 Fifth avenue. It remained and remains in the chapel. The World doscribed how after entering Mrs. Astor's house with the party. Mr. Drayton came out alone, and, "with his head bowed down, waked up the avenue to his sown house, No. 418, which he entered, opening the door with his latchkey." Mr. Drayton not baving appeared on the scene at all, did not wilk up the avenue in the manner described. Moreover, if he had walked up to "No. 418" Fifth avenue, he could not have opened the door with his latchkey. "On Thursday morning." The World continued, "the body will be taken to Trinity Chapel."

Taylor threw out a man who got drunk in his place shortly after 8 o'clock. The customer returned, placed money on the tar and asked for a drink. Taylor refused to serve the drink and knocked the money off to the floor. The customertried to strike Taylor and Tayfor drew a revolver. The customer cried: "Pon't shoot! I will go!"
Taylor fired, and the bullet passed through the customer's jaw and lodged in the back of his neck. As the man fell to the floor Taylor fired again, and a gentleman just leaving the saloon with his son received the bullet in the shoulder. When the boy turned tack and began reproaching Taylor the latter caught up an old sword and, running out, ran the boy through the arm. Two men who had been in the saloon throughout the fight then caught Taylor, and after a desperate struggle got him on big back. Taylor, and after a desperate struggle loss and on his back.

A crowd tushed in, and, upon learning what Taylor had done, began shouting: "Lynch hime!" "Hang him!" Sometody brought a rope from the rear of the saloon and Taylor was dragged out into the street and toward the nearest lamptost. His shouts for help attracted several potermen, who with difficulty pulled him news from the crowd and took him to rail. The crowd followed, hooting and shouting. They made three rushes upon the police, and once almost dragged Taylor off, but he was rescued, and eventually the crowd was dispersed.

CROWDS KISS THE BELIC.

Mgr. Marquis Has Dreided to Remain Here

Until Next Monday. Father Tetrenu, the paster of the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, where the relie of St. Anna is now exposed, has induced Mgr. Marquis, who has charge of the relic, to extend his stay. At first Mgr. Marquis intended to go today. On Sunday the enthusiasm was so great and the crowds so far beyond expectation that Mgr. Marquis agreed to stay until Wednesday noon. Yesterday telegrams and letters began to nour in from distant places begging that the relic might remain a little longer.

Mgr. Marquis is an old man. He is much pleased with his courteous reception by Father Tetreau, who was a boy when Monsignor became a priest and his pastor. He is also delighted with the enthusiasm of New York Catholies, who are not accustomed to the presence of such precious relies as this, and have shown as great picty and zeal as Monsignor has been accustomed to see in the Canadian provinces. has been accustomed to see in the Canadian provinces. So, when Monsignor was writing a telegram, saying he would leave here Wednesday afternoon, and Father Tetreau laid his hand on his arm with a pleading look. Monsignor stayed his writing, smiled, and said: "Well, I shall stay until next Monday. I am not well, and I worked hard in Rome, and the voyage here was wearving. I will stay a little longer, but Monday! will go."

So each day of this week and Sunday and until Monday at noon therelic will be exposed. Catholics from places within a radius of 100 miles will continue to crowd the asless of little St. Jean Baptiste to kiss the box containing the relic and light candles to Saint Anna.

The crowds were not so great yesterday as they were on Sanday and on Saturday afternoon, because working days do not give much opportunity for going up to Seventy-sixth street. But the crowd was always far beyond the capacity of the church, and the same arrancement of filling the church and emptying it before letting another crowd in was enforced by a reandaman and half a dozen police. About five thousand people kissed the relic. A good many of these came from a distance, and to-day, when the news of the extension of time shall have got well alwood, there will be still more strangers. It is expected that the crowds will increase gradually during the week, and that next Sunday will the seith an outpouring as is seldom seen in this city.

ROBBED OF THEIR DIAMONDS. Masked Robbers Despoil Two Women of $8,000 Worth of Jewelry.

SALT LARE CITY, May O .- A daring diamond robbery has just been made public. A few nights ago while Mrs. Engenberger and a friend, the wife of a wealthy wool grower. were sitting in the room, after returning from a ball, three masked men entered the apart ment, and, pulling out revolvers, demanded that the women hand over the diamonds which were went by them. The wire of the wool grower is reported to have asked the robbers if there were no mon in Salt Lake City worth robbing. In answer to this irony one of the robbers said:

"We are out for the sluff, men or women. We want all your diamonds. You women can do without jewelry. You don't need it. Shell out or you will get hurt."

The women gave up about $0,000 worth of diamonds, and also their purses, which contained nearly $175. There is no clue to the robbers. ment, and, pulling out revolvers, demanded
